CONNECT WITH NATURE AND CULTURE!

CONSERVING FOR THE FUTURE

GET INVOLVED NOW IT’S YOUR TURN

THE CHALLENGE
How can we protect our coastal heritage from the effects of climate change?
Coastal erosion puts our cultural treasures and important archaeology, like the 18th-century burial grounds at the Fortress of Louisbourg, at risk.

A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION
Routine shoreline monitoring and partnered initiatives help scientists protect valuable cultural resources.

THE RESULT?
New knowledge has provided a backbone for flood protection projects like the quay wall and the two stone groynes at Barrier Beach.

STAFF FAVOURITES

1. GREENWICH DUNES TRAIL

   “My favourite place in Prince Edward Island National Park is the Greenwich Dunes Trail. Despite having hiked it many times, my excitement always builds as I cross the floating boardwalk on Bowley Pond, climb the dune access and then turn around to see the most breathtaking views of the parabolic dune system. It’s unlike anything else!”

   Janette – Communication Officer

2. THIRD VAULT FALLS

   “Rugged and remote, this impressive waterfall plunges 16 m down a rocky ravine in its rush to join the Upper Salmon River. This is the largest waterfall in Fundy National Park and my favourite.”

   Aden – Park Warden

3. ALEC & MABEL

   “Hidden in plain sight! A beautiful photo found at Alexander Graham Bell National Historic Site; Alec watching Mabel pilot his speed record hydrofoil. It tells so much about them: her adventurous spirit and his anxiety, caution and pride all at the same time. This picture shows the importance of Mabel’s role in Alexander Graham Bell’s life.”

   Donna – Heritage Presenter

4. OUT OF THIS WORLD

   “My favourite gem in Kouchibouguac National Park is the Bog Trail. The view from the observation tower is amazing, and walking through the bog almost makes you feel like you’re on another planet! It’s very unique. Love it!”

   André – Internet Content and New Media Officer

5. CAPE SPEAR SUNRISE

   “Watching the sun rise over the Atlantic at Cape Spear Lighthouse National Historic Site is a spectacular bucket-list experience. You’ll be in awe of the colours and stunning panoramic views of the Atlantic Ocean and rugged coastline. It’s a better wake-up call than any cup of coffee I’ve ever had.”

   Lauree – Promotion Officer

6. SALIKULUK

   “Rose Island, (Salikuluk in Inuktitut) has been used by generations of Inuit who have lived, hunted, and gathered here. Part of Torngat Mountains National Park, this small island in Saglek Bay is a resting place for Inuit with over 600 traditional Inuit rock graves. When you step onto the island you know you have arrived at a truly special place.”

   Gary – Superintendent

7. A SOLDIER’S LIFE

   “I took my eleven year old son and his friend to the Halifax Citadel National Historic Site for his birthday to partake in the Soldier’s Life program. Immediately after the role-playing began, you could see a drastic change in them both. Serious fun! From donning their uniforms and working on drills to announcing the changing of the guard, these boys were up for every challenge.”
