CONSERVING FOR THE FUTURE

THE CHALLENGE
How can we protect our coastal heritage from the effects of climate change?

Coastal erosion puts our cultural treasures and important archaeology, like the 18th-century burial grounds at the Fortress of Louisbourg, at risk.

A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION
Routine shoreline monitoring and partnered initiatives help scientists protect valuable cultural resources.

THE RESULT?
New knowledge has provided a backbone for flood protection projects like the quay wall and the two stone groynes at Barrier Beach.

LE SENTIER DU BANC

Le nouveau sentier du Banc au parc national Forillon a tout pour plaire aux amateurs de courtes randonnées à pied ou à vélo. Ce parcours longe la mer avec les majestueuses falaises du bout du monde en arrière-plan. J’aime contempler le phare de Cap-des-Rosiers et la plage à partir de la tour d’observation qui surplombe le marais salé et profiter d’un pique-nique à la halte avec ma petite famille.

THE PAST BOOMS

Signal Hill National Historic Site is a sight to behold, but getting to experience it as a soldier of the Royal Newfoundland Companies in 1862 takes it to the next level. Firing a musket over the majestic St. John’s Narrows while wearing a historic uniform—that’s Signal Hill at its best.

DANCING STARS

My favourite things to do in Kouchibouguac National Park are paddle boarding in the shallow lagoon pools, watching the sun bathe the white sandy dunes when it sets, and seeing the stars dance in the reflection of the water at night. At this Dark-Sky Preserve, you get a spectacular celestial show at the end of your epic day. It’s a very humbling experience.

BELL'S INSPIRING VIEW
Sitting in the red chairs on the roof top terrace, looking at the beautiful Bras d’Or Lake, and imagining Alexander Graham Bell enjoying the same view, being inspired but at the same time, finding his spirit soothed and calmed by the beauty and sereneness, allowing his mind to be open to creativity and new ideas.

HEMLOCKS AND HARDWOODS TRAIL
The looming beauty of this trail will never lose its magic for me. Every time I visit Kejimkujik National Park and National Historic Site, I always make sure to carve out time to do this special trail. Over the years I keep coming back and every time my fondness for the giant, shady trees grows even deeper.
